Festival puts community first

By Roland Fisher

Whiskey Hourneyard and Martha Gray would be proud of some of the people who will be at the 20th annual festival, which takes place on the Saturday Festival 27 in Natick.

Over the years, this festival has seen some stirring improvisations of Houston and Carey, but it has also featured some amazing original performances by artists who had never been in the area.

The Adults festival will be held in the Community Center in Haverhill Park (March 6) and Langley Park (March 13).

This, in turn, will be followed by a main festival in the Company Garden in the city center from Friday 19 March until Sunday March 21.

We have had to suspend our event on Monday March 22, because of the final test event at the new Cape Town Stadium, which will host more than 60 000 people on the day and which will be a huge draw on the city's resources.

The Natick community festival will open again here held at the 11th Street in Palmer Avenue.

There will be a road procession from two different schools towards the festival venue at 12:30pm. This procession will end at the school at about 9:30pm.

The full programme will feature dance, poetry, drama and musical performances from community acts.

We are particularly proud of our community festival in Natick, because we realize how important and isolated the community is.

We also create opportunities, as part of the main festival, to showcase the best talents from the community festival. We create a space for the artists who also showcase their talents in the community. We perform outside of their community, to perform in the community. A 'Romeo and Juliet' with a 2010 spin

The Shipyards Cape Town Theatre Company in association with Artscape will present 'Romeo and Juliet', especially for learners, with performances for the public at work, from April 14 to May 1 in the Artscape Theatre.

This production is a contemporary re-visioning of the Shakespeare classic, set in Cape Town 2010, with the Montagues and Capulets playing for top competing soccer teams. This production will evoke memories of the realities of the great soccer teams of the 60s and 70s... The Southsides/Beats vs Orlando Pirates/The Buccaneers.

Directed by Roy Sengco, the production will star Dean Roberts and Zondra Njweni as the 'star-crossed lovers', award winning actress Diane Whelan as the Nurse, Peter Gilchrist as Friar Laurence, Steve Mouton as Capulet, Jeremy Krakenburg as Montague, Clayton Boyd as Mercutio and a full cast.

Super 14 – Coming Soon!

By Peter Murray

WHether it might only be in the second year, the New Year has already the build-up to the new Super 14 is in full swing with the Stormers once again being poised to hit its stride in the coming campaign.

Every season brings with it a new series of challenges and, after a disappointing 2005 campaign, Director of Rugby Rocco Fiebert must move to his.

The Western Cape franchise will be without former captain Luke Watson and Jean de Villiers this season, with both the big-name players currently playing in the IRB, but will be led by the arrival of Springbok stars Bryan Habana and Jaque Fourie.

Both Habana and Fourie are massive acquisitions for the Franchise and, along with the likes of Juan de Jongh, Peter Grant and Jan Pienaar, could form a potentially deadly backline duo.

The one highlight for Stormers in the tight five performances rugby in 2005 was the marked improvement in the right side performers. Wally Hogg, Brian Habana, Nicky de Haan, Andries Bekker and Anton van Zyl should still feature in the front five on the team sheet and, if they can repeat their form from last year, could be the cornerstone of a great season for the Cape side.

Natney's departure from the stormer is a blow for the Stormers but the combination of French Lions, Duane Vermeulen and Schalk Burger should have just about every South African fan excited.

IRB Player of the Year in 2004, Burger had a largely disappointing 2005 - the new campaign therefore represents a great chance for the dynamic star to bounce back. Captaining the side from the back of the scrum, it would be a brave man who says against him doing just that!

FIFA finally set for its African debut

By Justin Lawrence

The world's "South Africa 2010" issue just got thought around some world football – more specifically – the FIFA World Cup.

Now just less than six months away, the world's biggest sporting event will take place on the African continent for the first time when the "Wildcat Nation" hosts 32 nations from around the world during June and July.

Of course plenty has been made of the organisation of the event. Stadiums, travel, accommodation – the lot of great concerns going on. So unfortunately though these are the sports pages and our chief concern is exactly what will happen on the pitch once all the preparation is done and dusted.

Germany, Spain, the Netherlands and Brazil will once again no doubt arrive in South Africa as potential favourites while the defending champions, Italy, will certainly be in the running as well.

John Terry's England, after disappointing in Germany in 2006 and failing to qualify for Euro 2008, will have the pressure of great expectations once again dropped on to their shoulders. The question now is how they will respond.

Beside being rather fortunate to even be on their way to South Africa, France, Portugal and Argentina could well leave the continent as Champions or things go their way. All the teams are packed full of world-class talent but have struggled as recent seasons in recent times.

But it is an African tournament here! It's Vital about the African side? Ghana, with Michael Essien, Jerry Boateng, with Didier Drogba, and Cameroons, with Samuel Eto'o represent the continents best bet but the African side is a probable threat too.

There is still plenty of time for the predictions and team analysis but looking ahead to the tournament means couple of things are clear. One, there is one team which we think is going to come off favourites and, two, it is going to be exciting!
